

Women Called To Hear Civil Defense Orders

Special Luncheon Meet Announced by Maj. General Kreber

Fayette County women who are interested in the Civil Defense program are urged to attend an important luncheon meeting in Columbus Friday at which women will be given what is announced as the "recipe for their role in Civil Defense."

Capt. C. V. Sexton, Fayette County Director of Civilian Defense, announced Tuesday evening that any women from Washington C. H. or any other part of Fayette County, who will attend are urged to call him or any local women's organizations presidents.

It was announced by Major General Leo M. Kreber, State Director of Civil Defense, that Ohio will be the first state to receive direct information from the woman who heads women's affairs in Civil Defense from a national level.

"The role of Women in Civil Defense," will be the topic of a speech to be given by Mrs. Merle Huntington, who is the newly appointed consultant on Women's Affairs to the Federal Civil Defense Administrator, Washington, D. C. Mrs. Huntington will arrive in Columbus Friday and will be the guest speaker at a luncheon to be held in the Marine Room of the Desher Hotel, Columbus, Ohio. The luncheon will start at 12:30 P. M. and will be followed by a program built around the importance of women in Civil Defense. Various state officials will be present, including General Kreber, Brig. Gen. Kenneth Cooper, Asst. Adj. Gen., Dr. Wm. E. Warner, Executive Director of Civil Defense, and the leaders of many Women's state organizations.

General Kreber stated in his announcement, "Ohio Women are urged to attend this first Ohio Women's Civil Defense luncheon, which is being sponsored by The Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs. Other state meetings for women to follow will be sponsored by the various women's organizations involved. Members of women's clubs throughout the state have been requested to make their luncheon reservations, $2.25 each, not later than Wednesday January 10, through local women's organization presidents, or by calling the Civil Defense Director's office in this community." (Phone 8071).

General Kreber added, "That this first meeting bringing together the housewives, teachers, business and professional women and all women interested in Civil Defense, to hear the consultant on women's affairs explain the role that women will be called upon to perform - will afford a wealth of material from which a 'Recipe for the Role of Women in Civil Defense' can be prepared. Women are accustomed to following set patterns of procedure, whether it is cooking, managing a home or a business. We intend to prepare a bulletin which will be available as a part of our Civil Defense publications, and will be the recipe book for women in Civil Defense."

Truck Driver Is Injured in Wreck

Otis Crabtree, Washington C. H. driver of a haulaway truck loaded with four cars, was badly injured about 12:15 o'clock Wednesday morning when his truck crashed into the rear of a truck loaded with steel.

The accident occurred on the CCC Highway near Herb's Drive Inn, two miles west of Washington C. H.

Crabtree told State Highway Patrolman John Wyatt, who checked the accident and who also saw the crash, that he had been blinded by lights of an approaching truck and did not see the steel truck.

Crabtree was pinned in the cab for a short time. He was removed to Memorial Hospital.

He sustained severe arm and possible internal injuries, two fractured ribs, injured back and other injuries.

Robert Werner, Canton, driver of the steel truck, was not injured. The haul-away truck was badly damaged about the front, and one of the new cars it was hauling was damaged to the extent of about $200.

Mainly About People

Mrs. William Blue and infant son were released from Memorial Hospital, Tuesday and returned to their home in Sabina.

Mrs. Elmer Palmer of the Cline Road, was admitted to Memorial Hospital, Tuesday evening for surgery Wednesday morning.

A daughter weighing six pounds eight ounces was born in Memorial Hospital, Wednesday morning, to Mr. and Mrs. James Grubb of Highland.

Mrs. Richard Brown and infant son were released from Memorial Hospital, and returned to their home in Clarksburg Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kemp of the Wildwood Road, are the parents of a six pound ten ounce son, born in Memorial Hospital, Tuesday morning.

Kim Nye, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Nye Route 5, this city, was admitted to Memorial Hospital, Tuesday evening as a patient for observation and treatment.

An eight and one half pound daughter Christine Louise, was born in Greenfield Hospital, Tuesday afternoon to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sword 226 Florence Street.

Robert Leroy Conger, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Conger, 707 Peabody Avenue, (who enlisted in the U. S. army is taking his basic training at Camp Breckenridge, Kentucky.

Clyde Garringer of the Greenfield Road is a patient in Memorial Hospital for observation and treatment, instead of Bert Garringer as was reported in this column Tuesday.

Seaman 1-c Wayne Tice, who is stationed at U. S. Naval Base San Diego, California, is spending two days of his 21-day furlough with his brother, Mr. Robert Tice and Mrs. Tice, 411 East Elm Street.

Mrs. Frank Truitt of Bloomingburg has accepted a position at the Brown-Brockmeyer Company here. Mrs. Truitt is a graduate of the Katherine Gibbs Secretarial School, Boston, Mass., and of Otterbein College, Westerville.

Randall Miller son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Miller 601 Gregg Street was taken to Memorial Hospital Tuesday evening in the Gerstner ambulance for treatment of a fractured right leg, suffered in an accident while at play at his home.

Thomas Riley was returned from Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, Tuesday afternoon in the Gerstner ambulance to his home, 813 Sycamore Street. Mr. Riley who suffered a fractured spine in a traffic accident near Dayton several days ago is in a body cast and two other passengers, Charles Manker and Dwight Foy in the station wagon at the time are still patients in the Miami Valley Hospital and both also suffered fractured spines.

strength, and (3) to organize civil defense adequately and completely throughout the state."

Lausche suggested an appropriation of $250,000 for the biennium for the civil defense administration office. But, he said, another $5,000,000 should be set aside as an emergency fund to be drawn upon in the event of disaster.

Forest Shade Group Holds Regular Meet

Members of the Forest Shade Grange were entertained with music and talks at their regular meeting Tuesday evening in the New Martinsburg Grange Hall.

Miss Dorothy Eubanks opened the program with a piano selection, "Starlight Waltz." Mrs. Roxie Haines gave a talk on Social Security.

Three girls, Joyce Ann Widders, Barbara Riley and Marilyn Riley, sang the popular song, "Harbor Light." They were accompanied by Mrs. Eldon Marshall on the piano.

Robert Cockerill gave a report on the state grange meeting recently held in Toledo. He was the official delegate to the convention. The program closed with Mrs. Harley McCoppin reading the poem, "Winter Nights." It was announced that there will be an officers conference on Jan. 22 at 8 P. M. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Tway.

The refreshments committee for the evening's meeting consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Grice, Etta and Lena Grice, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Bethards, Mr. and Mrs. Wilber Wacker and Mrs. Irene Arnold. The next meeting, to be held Feb. 13 at the hall, will be under the direction of the youth committee.

state treasury for the last two years is about $15,000,000, the governor estimated. But, he pointed out, the last legislature ruled that certain excess revenues over the budget estimate will be divided, with 30 percent going to the school foundation fund, 30 percent to local governments, and with only 40 percent remaining in the state treasury.

Another $4,000,000 appropriated for state government operating expense has not been used, Lausche estimated.

But, he emphasized, 70 percent of the $359,000,000 spent by the state in the last two years was in subsidies to local governments and schools. And, he added:

"The percentage is alarming and especially so because at each legislative new demands are being made for increased and new forms of subsidies.

"It is, therefore, my recommendation that you approach with the greatest of caution any demands made upon you for increased subsidies, that instead of granting local political subdivisions greater subsidies, broaden the base upon which they can impose and collect their own taxes to provide the moneys which they claim they need for local purposes."

TAXES:
"It is my recommendation that the stamp method of collecting the sales tax be abandoned and that there be substituted in its place and collection of the sales tax on the gross receipts basis. To make this latter method of collecting the tax efficient and workable, I also recommend to you that the one-cent tax with modification be reimposed on sales of 13 cents through 40 cents."

After citing taxes collected from race tracks in other states, the governor recommended "that the pari-mutuel taxes in Ohio be brought into closer alignment" with other states. He said Ohio ranked next to last in the top 20 states in race track revenue.

Finally, Lausche proposed that local governments be given the right to collect liquor license fees from liquor dispensers equal to the license fees collected by the state."

State employee salaries:
"It is my recommendation that the present salary law remain as it is without any basic changes or modifications.

First National Bank Re-elects Officers Here

Re-election of President J. Roush Burton and all other officers and directors of the First National Bank of this city was announced today following their regular annual meeting Tuesday.

Re-named officers in addition to President Burton were: Harry Silcott, chairman of the board; Albert R. Bryant, vice president and cashier; Robert H. Olinger, assistant cashier, and J. William Wallace, assistant cashier.

Re-named directors were William M. Campbell, president of The Fayette Canning Co.; Stanley M. Hagerty, president of the P. Hagerty Shoe Co.; Lowell M. Hayes, druggist; Willard H. Perrell, farmer; Harry Silcott, farmer; J. Roush Burton, president; and Albert R. Bryant, vice-president and cashier.

In an annual statement to the shareholders, President Burton reported an "excellent" year of operation in which another all time peak was reached in the volume in business handled.

He and the other officers of the bank spoke of their thanks and appreciation for the cooperation of the shareholders, directors the entire bank staff, and the splendid support of the community.

Labor-industry relations:
"I believe Ohio's workmen's compensation law and unemployment compensation law to be substantially adequate, and that no material changes should be made in either."

Fair employment practices:
"I urge the enactment of fair employment practices legislation which will provide for a state commission having adequate powers of education, conciliation and effective enforcement."

EDUCATION

While reminding school interests that public schools of the state received $23,075,000 more during 1949-50 than they got in the previous biennium, Lausche told the legislature:

"I favor the enactment of a law which would provide a minimum salary of $2,400 a year for teachers. Furthermore, I recommend that the foundation program law be amended so as to provide sufficient funds for the additional aid districts of the state to enable them to maintain such a minimum salary."

He suggested the legislature explore the feasibility of the creation of a public school building authority, modeled after that in Pennsylvania. The function of the authority would be to build school buildings for local school districts unable to finance them. The authority would be empowered to borrow money, erect the buildings and rent them to local districts on a self-liquidating basis.

PUBLIC WELFARE
Lausche called the legislators' attention to the extensive construction program in 1949-50 of hospitals for the mentally ill. It follows, he declared, that "increased appropriations for operating purposes must be made for the Welfare Department institutions."

The cost of living, he said, is

School Board Votes Appropriations Here

Members of the Washington C. H. City School Board voted temporary appropriations totaling $77,282 to tide them over on operational expenses during the first three months of 1951 at their regular meeting held Tuesday night at the high school.

The appropriations were voted since the school board has not as yet received word as to how much money school officials here can expect from the county and the state. Under normal conditions the board would make appropriations into various accounts for the entire year.

The board voted to hire Mrs. Shirley Veerkamp, a graduate of Drury College in Springfield, Mo., as secretary to Stephen Brown, superintendent of schools.

John Sagar, 'president of the school board, appointed Richard Waters as the board representative to the Athletic Association Board. His appointment was confirmed by the board.

Some discussion was held relative to emergency repairs which must be effected to some of the city schools.

Mrs. James Rose and Mrs. Robert Minshall were at the board meeting representing the city PTA. Lawrence Burris was on hand representing the Young Business Men.

falling heavily upon our old age pensioners. Manifestly, he said, the money provided for them in 1949 now is inadequate. He asked the legislature to "authorize the granting of increased aid to the aged within the monies available."

PUBLIC WORKS

"I recommend the creation of a state office building authority empowered to sell bonds, without pledging the credit of the state of Ohio, and out of the proceeds of such sale to construct, or acquire, state office facilities, the cost of which will eventually be liquidated out of the rentals paid to the authority by the various occupying departments of state government, even though I have requested that a moratorium be declared, the state office building authority, nevertheless, should be created so that it will be in existence and ready to proceed when manpower and materials are available."

HIGHWAYS

"It is my belief that the trucks carrying heavy loads are not contributing their fair share for the construction and maintenance of the roads of Ohio and I, therefore, recommend to you the adoption of a ton-mile tax or an increase in registration fee based upon the ton-miles transported."

The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—President Truman is soft-pedaling his "fair deal" program for 1951.

He needs all the support he can get in Congress on his foreign program, since Congress already is split wide open on that.

Besides, a large part of Congress' energy this year is going to be needed for international dealings and defense.

In his State of the Union message to Congress yesterday Mr. Truman seemed very careful not to anger anyone very much about his domestic program.

The whole tone of what he said on domestic affairs was far less aggressive than his State of the Union speech in other years.

His Trumanite Democrats in Congress are outnumbered by the Republicans and southern Democrats, any time they team up.

The Republicans are his biggest hurdle on foreign affairs. He'll need to woo the southerners, or at least not push them away from him.

He infuriated them in other years when he plugged for his civil rights program: an anti-lynching law, abolition of the poll tax, and a Fair Employment Practices Commission (FEPC).

In his State of the Union message last year Mr. Truman said: "I again urge the Congress to enact the civil rights proposals I made in February, 1948."

This time neither "urge" nor "civil rights" appeared in his speech. He made oblique reference to the subject in a single sentence: "We must assure equal rights and equal opportunities to all our citizens."

The Taft-Hartley labor law, ever since the Republican-controlled Congress passed it in 1947, has been a sore point in Congress, busting it wide open.

A promise to wipe it out was one of the main points in Mr. Truman's campaign for the presidency in 1948. Ever since he has urged its repeal.

Last year in his State of the Union message he called T-H a "punitive" labor law and called on Congress to repeal it. Congress didn't.

This time Mr. Truman said action is needed to improve "our labor laws to help provide stable labor-management relations and to make sure that we have steady production in this emergency."

Last year Mr. Truman asked Congress to improve Social Security benefits. Congress did.

This time Mr. Truman seemed to be saying, although it wasn't clear, that old age pensions should be improved further.

This, too, was handled obliquely. But if Mr. Truman was asking for higher old age pensions, Congress isn't expected to respond.

And, while in the past Mr. Truman banged away at Congress for a compulsory health insurance program, this time he merely said: "We still need to provide insurance against loss of earnings through sickness, and against the high costs of medical care."

Previously Mr. Truman had asked Congress to provide federal aid to education. This too had become a sore point.

Yesterday he mentioned this subject by saying something needs to be done to aid "the states to meet the most urgent needs of our elementary and secondary schools."

Then he hastened to add: "some of our plans will have to be deferred for the time being."

That phrase about deferring "some of our plans for the time being" explained much of the soft-pedal Mr. Truman put on his "fair deal."

For a little later he added: "in the months ahead, the government must give priority to activities that are urgent—like military procurement, and atomic energy and power development."

It seems accurate to read into this a simple conclusion: he's going easy on the "fair deal" now but will return to it when, and if, he can.

Timely Topics Are Discussed At Rotary Meet

Pertinent Questions Put Up To Members For Their Views

Members of the Washington Rotary Club were unanimous in their interest and enthusiasm over the program which featured Tuesday's luncheon meeting at the Country Club.

Belford Carpenter of the January program committee, was in charge and presented nine pertinent and timely questions, all more or less controversial and subject to debate. Acting as moderator, after being introduced by Herbert Wilson, the chairman of the January committee, Carpenter tossed out these questions, one at a time, and called upon some club member to express his opinion, afterward putting the subject before the other members to ask questions or to take issue.

As a result, comments and arguments began to warm up at a lively rate. Although those asked to give their views did so without advance preparation, some very interesting thoughts were presented, and sometimes these were questioned by the listeners.

The question program became so interesting and discussion grew so extensive that only four of the nine questions were discussed in the club's allotted time for the meeting.

At the conclusion there was general agreement that there should be more of such programs, that they would help bring understanding and probably more unity among all organizations if such a practice could be adopted for similar programs at various periods.

The nine questions proposed by Carpenter and his committee were as follows:

1. Should we use the atom bomb in the present war with China?

2. Should the United States be governed by actions of the UN?

3. Will the influence of Rotary International have any effect in bringing peace to the world?

4. Should Japan be re-armed for its own protection and be accepted as one of the Allies of UN armies?

5. Should the church take an active part in politics?

6. Should the UN flag be flown above the flags of member nations in their own countries?

7. The United States is in a state of emergency; should other UN countries adopt the same plan of defense?

8. Do our educational programs keep abreast with our modern living?

9. The United States is considering universal military training; is this necessary?

Members entered into the spirit of the program with such zest that only questions one, two, three and five, could be touched upon because of limited time.

Definite Views Given
Attorney Vay Maddox was asked for comments on the first question and he expressed the opinion that the essential time had not as yet arrived for this nation to use the atomic bomb. He also questioned the use of our troops in Korea and vigorously answered questions put from the floor as to his reasons for that view.

On question three, Colin Campbell, a former district governor of Rotary, definitely declared that he felt the influence of Rotary toward world peace was definite and progressive, although it would require time, maybe far beyond our present lifetime.

Webster French, answering question two as to the United States being governed by actions of the UN, expressed interest in unity of action but felt that the United States should not be expected to pay most of the bills, furnish most of the military sup-

List of 'Ten Most Wanted Men' Headed by Rubber-check Artist

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The FBI today added a rubber-check artist to its list of "ten most wanted men."

He is Courtney Townsend Taylor, 42, native of East Hartford, Conn., who is described by the FBI as "perhaps the most ingenious check passer ever to operate in this country."

Taylor, who has more aliases than it is feasible to list, is credited with having cashed some $88,000 in worthless checks during the last seven years—$33,000 of them in the last eight months following his conditional release from Onondaga County Penitentiary at Jamestown, N. Y., in April, 1950.

He is under many charges in connection with this recent activity.

The FBI said that during a long career of printing and writing fraudulent checks, Taylor has victimized large stores in all parts of the country.

His checks usually purport to have been issued by big companies such as Tiffany and Co., Smith Brothers, Cough Drops, The Philip Morris Co., or Macy's Department Store, for which Taylor poses as a traveling salesman.

On the "most wanted" list, Taylor replaces Glen Roy Wright, wanted for robbery in Oklahoma City, and captured Dec. 13 at Salina, Kansas.

The FBI noted that Taylor "committed his first crime at the age of 10 when he stole $4 from his mother's purse; and that most of his adult life has been spent behind bars."

He was once chief bookkeeper at Mansfield, O., Reformatory, while serving time. He is known to have operated recently in the Newport, R. I. area.

Ex-Showgirl Dies
BRIGHTON, Eng., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Mrs. Hilton Philipson, 64, an ex-showgirl who became one of Britain's first women members of the House of Commons, died today after a short illness.

Warships Visit Spain
BARCELONA, Spain, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Guided by radar, five United States warships steamed into port through a dense fog today for the first American naval visit to Barcelona since the Spanish Civil War.

The new student guest, introduced by Don Lange, was Wendell Braden.

Birthday greetings were sung for George Steen, and Edward E. Porter, when asked to report on his recent trip to Mexico, said that he had greatly enjoyed it but was glad to get back home.

We Are Facing Test of Faith In Liberty

For the first time since the American revolution, with the exception of the war between the states, the people of our country are faced with a stark test of faith. The conflict with world Communism now is not to save the world for democracy, but to repel an enemy who is determined to destroy in our own land the Christian ideal of human dignity and individual liberty and the political system which upholds that ideal. Our faith and strength is this ideal.

As a nation, we came through World War II with little discomfort. Living standards have risen to record levels. So has the public debt which is exacting its toll in depreciating money. However it is evident that devalued dollars have not yet cramped our style. Last year, according to the Commerce Department, U. S. citizens spent a staggering $178,832,000,000. The fabulous "American way" is well illustrated in a current joke which defines pedestrian as a motorist who has found a place to park his car. The list of American "haves" could go on indefinitely. Already there are 8,000,000 television sets in our homes—homes which are equipped with tens of millions of deep freezers, refrigerators, electric stoves, radios, washing machines, ad infinitum.

In retrospect, after nearly two centuries of freedom and the boundless progress that only freedom could have achieved, it would be a wonder if we were not confused when suddenly confronted with the prospect of a fight for actual survival. But the time when we can afford confusion has nearly run out. These words of Lenin, uttered thirty years ago, ring with new significance: "As long as capitalism and socialism remain we cannot live in peace. In the end one or the other will triumph—a funeral requiem will be sung either over the Soviet Republic or over world capitalism . . . We have to use any ruse, dodges, tricks, cunning, unlawful methods, concealment and veiling of the truth."

This is ruthless concept, backed by vast military force, which is confronting America and the world. To meet it we will need more than arms and men. We will have to lay our sights on primary objectives and keep them there. We must forget the adolescent notion that material security is an unqualified "right". The "rights" embodied in the American ideal are few and elemental. They include equality of opportunity, freedom of speech and religion, and the protection of private property. They are the tools with which the individual may achieve "life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness."

In a word, it is time we again understood what this country really stands for. One distinguished American author, has said, "this country was not founded to furnish glamorous offices for politicians, or to produce goods and services, or handouts of easy money. This country was founded to make men free." In the wealth of material comfort we have enjoyed so long, we have tended to forget that great truth. Now we must return to the simple fundamental—"This country was founded to make men free."

We face a two-faceted task. We must fight with all we have against our enemies outside. And, while we are undergoing all the sacrifices and trials that may involve, we must keep our people free. One of the greatest dangers is that we may grant so much unlimited authority to the government that the system of checks and balances which stands between us and tyranny will be permanently destroyed.

We Americans have come to a climactic phase in the history of the good life. It is our duty to hold together for future generations the framework of freedom which made that good life possible.

It should not be forgotten that in our race for survival as a free people our number one asset is our capacity to make things well and quickly . . . It should not be impaired to any degree by imposing bureaucratic control over management effort.

At its advent 1950 was hailed as "the year of decision". It has now been succeeded by 1951, which so far looks like the "year of indecision."

Dumb Blonde Finds Film Land Dull

NEW YORK —(AP)—In the new movie, "Born Yesterday," which has ignited talk of an academy award for Judy Holliday, she plays a beautiful dumb blonde who learns to be an intellectual. Corny but true, the fact is that in real life Judy Holliday is a beautiful blonde intellectual who had to learn to be dumb. And so she found life in Hollywood very dull. "Making pictures is fine," she said. "It's stimulating, exciting. I respect and love it. "But the social life is deadly. Go to a party and you always meet the same people talking about the same thing—pictures. The urgent topic of conversation is: are you on the way up, or on the way down, on the inside or outside? "You're weighed the second you walk into a room. You can almost see the minds workings: what's she wearing? What did her last picture gross? Who did she come with? "If you happen to have an outside interest, a columnist hangs a story on it. And then it's no longer private, no longer your own. "If you don't happen to conform, you're hounded. There are always the interviews with the fan magazines. And they always appear this way: 'I was confronted by a pair of sparkling brown eyes and I just knew it had to be Judy Holliday!'" Judy Holliday paused. Slowly she crawled back from the end of the limb. "I really mustn't say anything about the fans," she said. "I'm liable to be bombed or something. They're aggressive children. I love them all—please put that down. But their little lives are bounded on one side by the unrealistic movies they see and on the other, by the lives they're trying to live in imitation of the movies." Miss Holliday cringes from use of the word, intellectual, about herself, but she happens to thrive on concerts and museums and books and conversations of some importance. "In Hollywood," she complained, "all you see is screenings." The fact that she got the movie lead in "Born Yesterday" is practically revolutionary. She had played it on Broadway for three years to the acclaim of critics and public alike. But when it was bought for pictures two years were spent considering 30 other actresses for the part. Then finally, an idea flashed through somebody's mind: why not Judy Holliday? Yes, why not? And thus history was made, fearlessly. "I really had grown tired of playing the part," Miss Holliday said. "But I had to do it in the movies. It had become an emotional thing with me. I could see myself telling my grandchildren about my three years on Broadway and then showing them the movie with Marie Wilson in, the lead."

Policy of Confusion and Error

For a decade, the administration has used every means within its power to suppress a public discussion of its foreign policy. The reason has been that that policy has been confused and full of error since 1933.

Mr. Roosevelt's first error was the recognition of Soviet Russia without an adequate study of the problems inherent in Marxian international relations, and the failure to exact guarantees of conduct, except the two which did not matter, namely, religious freedom and non-revolutionary activity in this country.

At the time when the Roosevelt-Litvinov negotiations occurred, it was obviously possible for the United States to state its terms, as Russia was the pleader for recognition.

Then followed a period of isolationism which lasted for five years, until Munich, with the one interruption of the quarantine speech in Chicago, which was delivered to cover up the then offensive appointment of Hugo Black to the United States supreme court.

From this isolationism, which really commenced after Mr. Roosevelt blew up the London world economic conference (1933) that might have saved Europe but for his intervention, we became a participant, secret and open, in World War II, which has now projected itself into World War III.

Such matters as the Quebec, Cairo, Teheran, Yalta and Potsdam conferences require understanding which can only come from public debate, but the administration has utilized such words as "isolationist," "fascist," "bipartisan foreign policy," "unity," "retreatist," "Gibraltarism" to deal with broad problems of public interest involving the lives of our sons and the welfare of future generations.

Thomas E. Dewey, Joseph P. Kennedy, Herbert Hoover, and John Foster Dulles have thus far joined the issue, as well as columnists and commentators.

Governor Thomas E. Dewey presented a view more like Dean Acheson's than his own, heretofore so often expressed. In the passion of our defeat at the hands of Soviet Russia in Korea, it is understandable that Governor Dewey would call for full support of the administration.

Certainly those who are responsible for errors costing American lives have no claim to undiscussed, unscrutinized, blind acknowledgment of their leadership. Governor Dewey's speech was a continuation of the Vandenberg program of a bipartisan foreign policy, which it is doubtful that Senator Vandenberg would now pursue.

Mr. Hoover and Mr. Kennedy developed, each somewhat differently, the theme that God helps those who help themselves and that the United States might well follow His example. The nation's response to Mr. Hoover's speech startled the administration him a "retreatist," a false tradition, which responded by call-label designed to confuse the issue.

For instance, last Sunday, the "New York Times," in its "The News of the Week in Review," published a map purporting to represent Mr. Hoover's views which omitted from the areas that he would include in our defenses, Iceland, Greenland, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa.

Yet, this is what Mr. Hoover actually said: "We can, without any measure of doubt, with our own air and naval forces, hold the Atlantic and Pacific oceans with one frontier on Britain (if she wishes to cooperate); the other, on Japan, Formosa, and the Philippines. We can hold open the sea lines for our supplies. And I devoutly hope that a maximum of cooperation can be established between the British commonwealth and ourselves."

Such an omission by the "New York Times" can only be regarded as a direct attempt to present the issue incorrectly.

John Foster Dulles's speech is one of the most difficult to analyze. After I read it carefully, I reached the conclusion that Mr. Dulles is not too far away from Mr. Hoover. Both agree that our lines have to be shortened: that we must not undertake more than we can accomplish. And it seemed to me that Mr. Dulles was advising our allies to do much for themselves.

At any rate, his speech, if it represented the State Department was a retreat from the Truman policy of containment. Mr. Dulles is generally announced as a Republican adviser to the State Department, which is inaccurate because the Republican party has not officially so designated him. Mr. Truman made the choice. He is a State Department official. However, until it is clear whether he speaks for himself, for the Republican party, or for the State Department, it is difficult to evaluate his speech.

Coronary Thrombosis Tipped by Arm Pain

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

Some of those who survive an attack of coronary thrombosis later develop a painful condition of the arm and hand which often seems to follow such heart attacks.

In coronary thrombosis, the cutting off of the blood supply to some part of the heart muscle results in death of the affected tissue and its replacement by scar formation.

Critical Stage

During the critical stage of coronary thrombosis, about one-fourth of the patients have pain in the shoulder and, of those who recover, about one in ten later develops severe shoulder pain, with swelling and sweating of the hand on the left side. If this type of trouble develops, it usually starts within three to twelve weeks after the heart attack.

The first stage of this disorder may last from three to six months. The shoulder is painful, and motion of the arm is limited. The hands and fingers are sore and swollen, with redness of the skin, and excessive sweating.

Pain in Shoulder

During the second stage, the pain in the shoulder and swelling of the hand gradually become less. However, there is gradual wasting of the muscles and bone. The tissues are very sensitive.

The third stage continues for months and years. There is some wasting of the muscles, skin and bone, and the hands and fingers become deformed. Some pain still continues. There may be burning pain due to jarring, drafts, or emotional upset. In some cases, blisters appear on the hands, and ulcers or sores form. It is fortunate that this condition can be overcome to some extent by the use of a drug known as "Etamon," or by the injection of local anesthetics into the sympathetic nerve.

An operation, or cutting of these sympathetic nerves, also will relieve this condition. With proper treatment, the symptoms disappear in many instances.

It is important that the condition be recognized promptly when it occurs, since early treatment may help to prevent extensive permanent damage to the tissues.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

C. J.: What causes the ears to keep ringing?

Answer: Ringing in the ears may be due to a number of causes, such as anemia, kidney disease, and an accumulation of wax in the ear, as well as to an infection in the tube connecting the ear with the mouth. It would be advisable to have a physical examination made by your physician to determine the cause of this condition. When the cause has been found, it will be possible for the doctor to advise you as to treatment.

RESEARCHER at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, Md., Dr. Emanuel Schoenbach talks to reporters after announcing discovery of a new method for the "scientific control of cancer." ## Europe's Free Press Hails Truman Speech

LONDON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The free press of Europe today hailed President Truman's State of the Union speech as a morale builder for all nations resisting Red aggression.

Reflecting the general approval expressed in the British press last night, newspapers in France, Belgium, Scandinavia and other nations under the Communist shadow said the speech would harden western Europe's will to defend itself.

As yet there was no reaction reported from Moscow, but elsewhere the Communist press, with its usual single accord, branded the speech as a new step toward a "war of aggression."

The Independent Figaro of Paris pretty well summed up the western reaction with these words: "The year of weakness is over. America has not forgotten the unfortunate consequences of appeasement."

No Agreement On Tax Policy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—President Truman said today the nation must be taxed "until it hurts" to arm the free world against the menace of Communist aggression.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, it was learned, believes despite widespread recommendations for "pay-as-you-go" financing, taxation steep enough to pay out of hand for the huge re-armament effort would rip the nation's economic fabric.

Any hope that sizeable new federal deficits could be avoided by increased taxes appeared to be fading as members of the new Congress sized up probable outlay and came to a tentative conclusion that the government will need somewhere in the region of $75,000,000,000 in the coming fiscal year. That is $25,000,000,000 more than the record $50,000,000,000 collections of this year.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 10.—(AP)—A paroled Ohio Penitentiary convict was shot and killed today as he chased a pretty waitress around the upstairs bar in the Rockport Veterans Club, a Cuyahoga County detective said.

The parolee was Victor Behyner, 46, who has been sentenced to one to five years on a larceny conviction and paroled after about three years.

Detective Harvey Weitzel said Louis Zappone, 46, had admitted pulling a .32 caliber gun from under the bar and shooting Behyner early this morning. Zappone owns the club property in suburban Linndale.

Zappone declared he shot in self defense, the detective said. The waitress was Miss Mildred Fritz, 37.

Broadway Bargain-It's Video Show

By FRED HIFI
Central Press Correspondent

NEW YORK — The television show is probably the best—and certainly the cheapest buy along Broadway today. Every night, thousands of New Yorkers and out-of-towners crowd the many legitimate houses that have been taken over by the broadcasting networks in their continuous search for more space to house the young TV giant.

More often than not they are treated to a show that ranks with the best, complete with dancers, singers, comedians and all the glitter and glamor of a major production. To top it all—tickets don't cost a cent.

The popularity of television programs at the production stage has taken the television boys somewhat by surprise. They frankly admit that they did not expect the demand for television tickets to snowball to the point where it far outweighs that for radio tickets.

All the networks have had to enlarge their guest relations departments to handle the avalanche of mail that is showered on them. One television network says it has now reached the point where the mailman dumps more than 300,000 letters with ticket requests at its offices every month, about triple the volume of last year.

"I CAN'T quite understand it," says harried Peter M. Tintle, manager of the TV chain's guest relations department. "You'd think people would prefer seeing a show in close-up, from a front-row seat, in the comfort of their living room. But we find that those who have become steady viewers of a certain show just can't wait until they are here and see it put on."

The waiting list on some programs stretches way into next year. There are shows that have requests on file for the next four to eight months, and that is figured on the basis of two tickets to a person only.

While it is necessary to write in for most of the elaborate productions, tickets for the daytime shows are more readily available and often can be picked up at the network information desks for the same day.

Despite the plushy settings and the popular stars on many of the TV programs open to the public, the broadcasters charge no admission on the theory that they are really performing a public service. Some frankly say that they seek the audience as much as it seeks them.

The types of television programs that open their doors to an eager audience are limited to comedy, variety and audience participation shows. None of the dramatic productions are anxious for visitors.

"WE ARE STILL so cramped for space that our sets are usually arranged in a half-circle, one next to the other," a television director explains. "An audience could easily spoil the show."

"Let's say an actor has to hurry from one set to the other, and he trips over a cable. That may appear funny to a studio audience, there may be laughs, and the illusion of those watching on their sets would be completely spoiled."

Seeing a television show go before the cameras is fascinating fun, but it can also be a little annoying. The TV lights make it mighty hot up in the balcony; cameras and other gadgets have a way of blocking off the view of the audience in close-ups, and the activity on the stage is sometimes utterly confusing.

In some theaters television sets with large or small screens have been installed to let the audience in on what is actually going out on the air and what is just preparation.

All this does not deter the television fans. Requests for tickets come from all over the world, and particularly from England. Most of them are for quiz-shows and the question inevitably asked is: How much do I stand to win?

Plans Are Laid Here By CROP

Carload of Corn Goal for County

With a train carload of corn as their goal, ministers, farmers and extension leaders of Fayette County have started making plans for the collection of grain for distribution to hungry people overseas.

Corn collected here will be added to thousands of tons of grain which will be collected from all over the nation for distribution by leaders of the Christian Rural Overseas Program (CROP).

Brooks G. Trueblood, Washington C. H. attorney was selected Tuesday to serve as CROP chairman for Fayette County following a visit by Roger Getz, associate CROP director of Ohio. Getz met with members of the Fayette County Ministerial Association and was pledged their full support of the CROP program.

James D. Wyker, Ohio CROP director, recently conferred with several citizens here who are interested in aiding the hungry people in Europe.

Those meeting with him were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wipert, Rev. Guy Tucker, Rev. A. F. Moon, W. W. Montgomery, Frank Boso and Miss Gladys Melson.

Captains have been named for several townships in Fayette County. They include: Ralph Nisley, Concord, Green and Perry Townships, Rev. W. S. Alexander is securing captains and helpers in Jefferson, Paint and Madison Townships.

Films Available

To help tell the story of CROP and the tremendous need for food overseas, films are being made available for showings to groups in the county, principally Granges and Farm Bureau councils.

Those who wish to use the films are requested to contact W. W. Montgomery, county agent, Frank Boso is contacting Farm Bureau councils to get them interested in showing the films.

Leaders of CROP in Fayette County are aiming for the period of from Feb. 4 to 10th, when collections will actually be made in the various townships in the county. They are seeking to tell their story before the collections get underway.

Ministers will cooperate Feb. 4, when they will give special prayers on what will be set aside as "CROP Sunday."

Plans for the collection of corn will be made at a big CROP rally, set for Feb. 1 in the Farm Bureau auditorium. At that time pledge cards will be provided and explained, solicitor instructions will be given and a refugee film will be shown.

Will To Fight

By experience they know that there are no winners in war. Even if they are on the winning side they know they will be too prostrate to enjoy it.

They still believe in freedom and wish with all their hearts they can keep it but have difficulty convincing themselves they can do it.

They want to stop the Russians but without "morale" the dangers and sacrifices of rearming seem almost too much to bear.

There are scores of other factors complicating the rearming of Europe. But most of them would fade if the morale problem were settled.

This is Eisenhower's big task. Tanks and guns are no good unless the soldiers and peoples behind them have the will to fight and use them.

There Are Exceptions

There are exceptions, of course, among the European nations. Great Britain can be counted on to fight bravely, as she has in the past. British and American army cooperation in Germany is wholehearted and unstinting on either side. Some of the smaller countries like the Norwegians also are prepared to stand and fight. Unfortunately they are not strong enough to tip the scales in the west's favor.

Great Britain is forced to divide her might among sea, air and land forces. She cannot make a large enough land contribution on the continent to deter the Russians even with American and small country aid.

European defense depends primarily on France and Germany and to a lesser extent on Italy. These are the only nations with the manpower and the strategic position among the Atlantic pact powers to make a successful defense of the continent possible.

France is depended upon under the Atlantic pact program to

Tick-tock Treasures Reveal Art

By LUCIA PERRIGO
Central Press Correspondent
CHICAGO—"This is really high time!" commented one awed spectator at Chicago's Art Institute where one of the world's rarest collections of watches, some more than 300 years old, is on display.

Valued at $200,000, the 51 magnificent timepieces, once owned by royalty and now the possession of collector Harry H. Blum of Chicago, were amassed in Europe during the last three decades.

Gem-studded, exquisite in craftsmanship, they represent a romantic age when watches were treasured as pieces of jewelry or curiosity rather than accurate timepieces.

They ran from 24 to 48 hours without winding, but invariably had to be regulated by sundial!

The show, scheduled to run until the end of the year, has no watch guaranteed to run under water, but its priceless examples are guaranteed to stun the beholder beginning with the earliest specimen, an elegant enameled case belonging to the German Emperor Frederick the Great.

It is one of a group made by the brothers Huad of Geneva displaying provocative mythological love scenes so fashionable in the Seventeenth Century. Others, many of which keep perfect time today, are in combination with snuff boxes.

AN ENGLISH model built up in gold and agate, studded with diamonds, has several compartments for the watch and various kinds of snuff and perfume.

Others feature moveable figures, shapes of harps, beetles, lanterns, lyres, barrels, shoes, mandolins, eggs, elephants, tulips and Crucifixes.

Enthusiast Blum began collecting in 1919 when he made one of his annual trips to Paris. He purchased a watch shaped like a beetle, plated with gold and set with diamonds, from a Russian nobleman who had fled the revolution and opened a shop with some of his family heirlooms.

With Europe well populated with impoverished royalty his collection began to grow and with it his interest in the history of timepieces. Their origin is traced to a German locksmith of the Sixteenth Century.

Shortly thereafter the refinement came of replacing a weight as the driving power, with a spring to put in motion a train of wheels.

supply the bulk of the ground forces needed in Europe.

France was beaten in the war of 1870. She was virtually beaten and bled white in the 1914-1918 war. In 1940 she was overrun in six weeks and put up a resistance that at best must be described as feeble. Four years of morale-sapping occupation followed.

Scars of War Last

These scars cannot be removed overnight and they are still visible today. French morale is perhaps the lowest in Europe when it comes to again rearming to the hilt and making a firm stand against the Russians.

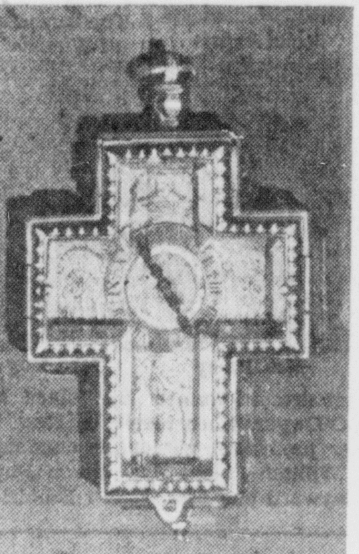

France's position is further complicated by having (1) a weak, divided government which is seldom able to hold power more than a few months and (2) an estimated six million Communists in the country.

In contrast to the other political parties the French Communists are a hard disciplined core. They are ruthless. In a crisis they probably could seriously cripple any war effort with sabotage, resistance, strikes and overt acts.

Just how large an infiltration the Communists have in the French armed forces remains to be seen.

Seventeenth Century (German) Cruciform.

Seventeenth Century (French?) Cruciform.

Seventeenth Century (English) Octagonal.

Seventeenth Century (English) With mythological scene.

Martin Luther in 1527 was given such a watch and in 1536 Henry VIII gifted his third wife, Anne Boleyn—for whom time was short—with a similar jewel.

Tracing the history are examples of pierced cases adorned with foliage and animals set in precious stones which came into fashion in the Eighteenth Century, and the use of pearls which is indicative of 1800.

The shape of the earliest watches was cylindrical, but with the invention of the hairspring the thinness was lost. Slimness again was achieved in the Eighteenth Century, and the delicacy of the thin movements conceived then rivals the art of watchmaking today.

The perfection in the combined arts of the goldsmith, lapidary, engraver, enameler, jeweler and watchmaker of Europe has no finer example than the blazing Easter egg that Czar Nicholas II gave to the czarina in 1913 to mark 300 years of the Romanoff reign.

For the moment there are not many armed forces to count.

The French have three divisions in their army of occupation but only a fraction of these are ready to fight. Their present reserves in France proper are negligible and poorly equipped. The professional heart of the army is fighting in Indochina and cannot be counted on for European defense.

France has plans to raise an army of nearly a million in the next two or three years. Even if the west has this long, the question remains: will these forces have the will to fight?

Italy is in a similar position. During the last war the morale of the Italian soldier was notoriously bad under Fascism. No one knows whether it would be any better under democracy. There is no doubt the Italian people are war weary and politically cynical. Although the government is stable there is a large and vigorous Italian Communist party which has proven its ability to torture the country with disabling strikes when opportunity offers.

Italy Needs Time

As an ex-enemy nation, Italy also has been largely disarmed and it will take time and money to rebuild her armed forces.

Western Germany with its 48 million people and large reservoir of trained soldiers is eyed enviously by military men.

I have been asked frequently

LOSES 22 LBS. Never Felt Better

Mr. Larry Rossi, 36 Oakview Ave., Struthers, Ohio writes: "I feel about 5 years younger since using Rennie. I was really fat and had a lot of trouble breathing when I walked. When I started with Rennie I weighed 182 lbs. Now I weigh 160 lbs. I have never felt better."

It's amazing how quickly you can lose weight at home. Obtain liquid Rennie at your druggist's mix with grapefruit juice as directed and take two tablespoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it. If you do not lose weight with the very first bottle just return it for your money back. You need never know a hungry moment while reducing with Rennie.

Insurance Men Unaffected by Strike Threat

Local Agents Do Not Belong To Group Involved

Four Prudential Insurance Co. agents in Washington C. H. are unaffected by the strike of 500 insurance agents in four western Pennsylvania counties.

F. M. Wean, one of the Prudential agents here, said they belong to an independent union, the International Union of Life Insurance Agents. It has membership in the Middle West in Ohio, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa.

Other Prudential agents here are D. L. Parrett, James R. Mason and E. L. Berry, all of Washington C. H.

The strike of the insurance agents in Pennsylvania threatened not to be misled or interpret some European political statements as appeasement or collaboration with Communism or just silly unjustified optimism.

It is probable the speaker does not really believe what he is saying but is like the small boy whistling in the grave yard. He hopes for the best but fears the worst.

Politicians Ride Tide

West German politicians are riding this anti-rearming tide to gain concessions from the west. Even if they get all the concessions they are asking it is doubtful if they could pull the voters over on their side and convince them they must arm.

Should the west become stronger, offering some protection against the threat of attack, and should the west Germans feel themselves equal partners of the western nations, they might vote to rearm. No one can say for sure.

This does not mean the Germans would favor the Russians. With millions of dead and hundreds of thousands of brothers, sons and daughters having disappeared into Russia as prisoners, the Germans hate the Soviets.

It is axiomatic that the closer the Europeans are to the Russians, the more they dislike them.

Germans say if the west really wants some one to fight the Soviets they should recruit eastern Germans who live under Soviet rule. It is true that west Berlin, which is completely surrounded by the Soviet army is the most belligerent and outspoken against them.

The Germans like the rest of the continent must be convinced that what they have is worth fighting for and if they prepare to fight they have a chance of winning without being wiped out in the process.

Under these conditions it is well to spread across the nation, according to an Associated Press dispatch, unless 32 suspended Pittsburgh agents are reinstated.

Harold T. Walsh, president of the New Jersey unit of the union, said the nationwide walkout of 18,000 Prudential agents was set for 5 P. M. Tuesday if the Pittsburgh agents were not reinstated.

Prudential company spokesman said no ultimatum had been received.

The Pittsburgh agents, members of local 24438 AFL National Insurance Agents Council, voted to strike after the 32 agents were suspended for failure to make out debit reports.

A union spokesman said a debit report "is an account taken off an agent's collection book—taking into consideration all business conducted by the agent, an up-to-the minute accounting." A cash account simply is an account of money collected by agents during the previous week.

Vade Meador, president of local 24438 here, reported the strike deadline was set by George Russ, national president, at Washington.

In Washington, Russ was reported ill in bed at his home. He said through his wife he had no knowledge of the strike.

The union contends the agents reports were not yet due when the men were suspended last Friday.

Meador said the union also wants wage negotiations opened.

Under the contract there is no wage-reopening provisions, according to a union spokesman.

Son-In-Law's Advice Pays

Frank W. Woche, 531 Apache Street, Houston, Texas, can't say enough for HADACOL. A retired steamfitter and plumber, he says that he's really enjoying life these days—for up until a few months ago he was run-down, and just couldn't seem to eat. Then his son-in-law suggested he start taking HADACOL, and after the first small bottle he picked up energy, and increased his appetite. He's now taken four large bottles, and says that he just wouldn't be without HADACOL. Mr. Woche found that HADACOL helped his system to overcome deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Nicotin and Iron.

Here is Mr. Woche's own statement: "I was so run-down and my son-in-law suggested I take HADACOL. I had lost lots of weight and was tired all the time. After the first small bottle I started feeling better right away. I have now taken four more large bottles and wouldn't be without HADACOL. HADACOL has done so much for me. It's wonderful and all of my friends saw how bad I was looking and now tell me how much better I look. I can't say enough for HADACOL. 1950, The LeBlanc Corporation

Class Members Are Entertained By Mrs. Powell

Twenty five members of the Marguerite Class were welcomed at the attractive home of their teacher Mrs. Marguerite Powell, Tuesday evening for the regular January meeting. Arrangements of shaggy mums decorated the rooms for the occasion and the meeting was presided over by the class president, Mrs. Kenneth Arnold. She opened the business session with a short prayer. The usual reports were read and Mrs. Walter Rettig was appointed chairman of sales tax stamp collection. A liberal donation was made to the "March of Dimes" and Mrs. Kenneth Craig gave a report for the card committee. It was decided that the class will continue to sponsor Junior Church and suggestions to changes in the curriculum were made. At the close of the meeting Mrs. Powell led in a panel discussion of some lessons studied by the class in the past. During the social hour the members enjoyed informal visiting over tempting refreshments.

Class Members Are Entertained By Mrs. Hays

Mrs. Allen Hays was hostess on Tuesday evening to the members of the Loyal Daughters Class of McNair Church. Mrs. Richard Kelley, president conducted the business session and seventeen members responded to roll call and the opening hymn was "Living For Jesus". Devotions led by Mrs. Kelley included Scripture reading from Romans and Mrs. Bryan Leasure conducted the Bible study, using as the topic "A Prayer For Action" and also read a poem "A Field of Dreams". The secretary's report was given by Mrs. Ivan Kelley, and Miss Martha Hughes gave the treasurer's report. Mrs. Forest Dawson reported for the flower committee and the class voted to contribute generously to the Polio Fund. The business session closed with prayer by Mrs. Frank Thompson.

A social hour followed and in a contest "Famous Slogans" conducted by the hostess, Miss Martha Hughes and Sharon Kerns were awarded prizes. Mrs. Hays served a tempting refreshment course.

Mrs. Mittman Is Hostess to Club Members

The regular meeting of the Past Councillor's Club, D. of A., was held at the home of Mrs. Ernest Mittman and was preceded by a bountiful covered dish dinner.

The business session later was presided over by the vice president, Mrs. Earl Orr, and opened with the praying of the Lord's Prayer, and Scripture reading by Mrs. Jess Whitmer. Roll call was responded to by fourteen members, and the usual reports were heard and approved.

At the close of the meeting the members and guests enjoyed a round of games and several prizes were awarded. Mrs. Mittman was assisted in the hospitalities by Mrs. Charles Grieves and Mrs. Earl Orr. Guests included were Mrs. Mittman's mother, Mrs. Lloyd, Mr. Charles Grieves and daughter Nancy, Mr. Ernest Mittman and Mrs. Gladys Demaree of Dayton.

Women's Clubs To Sponsor Defense Meeting

The Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs will sponsor a luncheon meeting of the Ohio Women's Civil Defense, on Friday, January 12 at 12:30 P. M., in the Marine Room of the Deshler-Wallick Hotel in Columbus.

All B. & P. W. members are urged to attend this meeting, and the speaker will be Mrs. Muriel Huntington, coordinator of Women's Affairs Civil Defense Office of Civil Defense Administration in Washington, D. C.

Miss Norma Dodd, president of the B. & P. W. Club here, is announcing that members who can attend are to make their reservation at the Columbus B. & P. W. office, with Ruth LePauvre, 71 East State Street, phone Main-9763, Columbus, before Thursday, January 11.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Ray French and son Phil returned Tuesday from a two weeks vacation spent in Florida, going down the west coast and returning by east. While in Florida they were guests for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Claibourne and son Charles at their home in Sarasota.

Miss Mabel Pumphrey of Indianapolis, Indiana and Miss Helen Meyers of Greensburg, Indiana, have returned to their homes after spending a week as the guests of Dr. and Mrs. I. L. Pumphrey.

Mrs. Lulu Hyde Huston has returned from a visit of several weeks in Washington D. C. and New York City.

Club Members Luncheon Guests Of Mrs. Farquhar

Sixteen members of the Tuesday Kensington Club were indebted to Mrs. O. D. Farquhar on Tuesday afternoon, for a delightful event when she included them at a delicious three course luncheon at twelve thirty o'clock.

One long table with a lovely arrangement of white baby mums as the central adornment, and one small table with a smaller bouquet of the same flowers in the center, seated the group for a most pleasant luncheon hour.

During the afternoon the members as usual enjoyed congenial chatting over needlework. Mrs. Walter Patton, the only absent member, is vacationing in Florida.

Big Turn-out For First Aid Meeting Here

Eighty-five women from Fayette County showed up Tuesday night for an organizational meeting to set up an enlarged program of first aid training here, and proved that women plan to take a vital part in civilian defense.

James Yates, instructor, set up four regular classes, the first to be held at 7 P. M. next Monday in the basement of the First Presbyterian Church, with Richard Rankin in charge.

Other classes which have been planned include the following: next Tuesday at 1 P. M. at the First Presbyterian Church, with Dr. J. F. Wilson in charge; Monday, Jan. 22, Dayton Power and Light Co., and Friday, Jan. 26, Dayton Power and Light Co., for Business and Professional Women's Club (tentative), with Yates in charge of the latter groups.

Yates said there were approximately 160 women signed up in the first aid course.

Goal for Fayette County is 4,000 persons trained in first aid work. Their prime job will be in taking care of bombing victims from surrounding cities should an aerial attack be launched.

Interest Must Be Shown

Community Chorus To Be Formed Here Soon

Prompted by numerous requests and indications on the part of many singers in the county, Loren E. Wilson of Washington C. H., has decided to organize a community chorus of both male and female voices here.

Tentative plans are to form a chorus, and give one or two public concerts each year, as well as to enjoy the pleasure of singing together at stated intervals. Whether the chorus will be formed will be dependent on how much interest is shown.

Wilson has sung in many choirs and directed choruses of various sizes, including Grace Methodist Church choir for a number of years.

For years he was engaged in Lyceum and Chautauqua entertainment, and traveled throughout concert or two each year for the public to enjoy.

"In order to find out how many people would be interested in the organization of a chorus society, will each one who is interested, mail a card to me giving information as to their singing voice, soprano, alto, tenor or bass; your desire to join such a group, which will hold regular meetings, and also your address and telephone number.

"This invitation goes to anyone living in Fayette County, especially

First SCO Victory Hung up by Hillsboro

Only one team—Wilmington's Hurricane—remained under a victory to its credit in the SCO League, as the Lions cagers of WHS polished off their plans for a two-game invasion of northcentral Ohio Friday and Saturday.

Rose Avenue Kids Win League Opener

The city elementary school Kid League got under way Tuesday afternoon at the Washington C. H. Armory, as the Rose Avenue quintet won out over the Central School team, 22 to 11.

The Rose Avenue team averaged six points per quarter in all but the third when the Central team was able to stop them. In the first period the Rose Avenue youngsters led six to four and at half-time they held a 14 to six lead over the Central team. In the third frame Rose Avenue hoopers had a 16 to 9 edge, with the scoreboard ringing up the final score, 22 to 11.

Francis Wilson, center for the Rose Avenue squad copied top score for his team and the game with 14 counters all on baskets. Charles Varney was high for Central with five tallies on a free throw and a basket.

The next game will be between Cherry Hill and Sunnyside Thursday at 4 P. M. on the Armory court.

Teams in Scramble In All-Star League

Paul Pennington's kiegles won three games and four points in Tuesday night's All Star League bowling at Bowland, but their 2466 was not the highest score of the evening.

Top total honors were taken by Bryant's Restaurateurs but, ironically, they could win only one game and two points from Sons Grillers. The Restaurateurs crashed the pins for a total of 2598 while the Grillers were tallying 2544 and winning the first two games—but by narrow margins.

The usually tough Warner Servicemen had an off night. They tallied only 2393 pins and lost two games and three points to the plugging Sabina Oilers who won the first and last games with 2453 pins.

Pennington's Bakers dropped the tie to the Daimeyns by 15 pins and two and take three points in their then came back to win the last match.

On a last half rampage to beat Wilmington's Hurricane, 75 to 50. Scoring was well spread out among virtually all the players on the floor. Garman, the Indian center, was high with 12 points. Long got 12 for the Hurricane's high scorer.

By useless comparison, the Lions beat the Indians, 65-63, in an overtime period here. It was the first league win of the season for the WHS. Four games later, they swamped the Hurricane, 57 to 45.

The Lions leave Friday for their only overnight trip of the basketball season. They will play at Ashland that night and then go on to Galion for a game Saturday night. They are expected to be among the toughest games on the WHS schedule this season.

THE LIONS, to date, have won five and lost two. One of their defeats was at the hands of Greenfield's Tigers, 60 to 57—and the Tigers, beaten by Circleville's Tigers for their only defeat, are still considered the "team to beat" in the SCO race.

The Lions still head the SCO parade, by virtue of the most victories. Here's how they stand as of right now.

Commercial League Winners Take All

It was another of those rare big nights for the winners when the Commercial League bowlers took over the Bowland alleys Tuesday night. They all made clean sweeps and none of them was too hard pressed to do it.

Helfrich's Marketeters turned in the high total (without handicap) when they racked up 2540 in blanketing the Farm Bureau.

Not far behind, were the Constructors with 2528. They shut out the Hallidays.

The 2424 tallied by the Maddux Radios was good for three games in their match with the Sunlights and the Brown & Brockmeyer whitewashed the Cudahy Packers with 2477.

Penn Captain Awarded High Football Honor

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The Robert W. Maxwell Memorial Football Club award to 1950's outstanding collegiate football player was presented last night to Francis (Reds) Bagnell, University of Pennsylvania captain and record-setting halfback.

The award was made by Bert Bell, National Football League commissioner and Maxwell club president.

New Holland Wins From Walnut Cagers

New Holland's Bulldogs today were still in a four-team deadlock for first place in the Pickaway County basketball scramble after romping to a decisive, 54 to 34, defeat of the Walnut Township cagers on the big floor at Walnut Tuesday night.

It was the fourth win against one defeat in league play for the Bulldogs. They have lost to Monroe, one of the four teams in the tie.

But at least one of the peace-makers will tumble Friday night when the Bulldogs go to Ashville. Incidentally, Ashville's only defeat was at the hands of the same Walnut outfit that the Bulldogs whipped Tuesday night.

In the Bulldogs game with Walnut, the ultimate outcome was never in serious doubt. The New Hollanders took a 10-6 lead in the first period, after getting off to a slow start, and stretched it as the game progressed.

With his mates feeding him the ball in smooth floor play, Helsel poured through 8 field goals and 3 foul shots for 19 points, the high total for the game. Flack came through with 12 points.

An oddity of the game was the 10-point total made by Walnut's high scorer, Oldaker was able to connect for but one field goal but he fattened his total with 8 good free throws.

The preliminary provided the thrills of the evening—and New Holland won that too by a single point with less than three seconds to play.

With time running out, the two teams were tied at 15-all. It looked like an overtime for certain. Then, with three seconds left, the referee's whistle sounded and Kirk was fouled going into the basket. He was given two free throws. He missed one and made the other just as the game ended.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

"I MUST beg you," said Gamadge earnestly to Mrs. Goldfield. "To lower your voice a little. You and I are two of a very small number of persons now living who know the fact."

"Fact? How can you—"

"There's a facsimile of the great man's handwriting later on; take a look at it, and then at this envelope. His home was in Shale, Somerset. There's a description of the paper the letters were written on—that shape and size, and that peculiar shade of blue. There are eleven letters, no envelopes, and some of them are dated 1875. I'm used to handwriting—I only needed a look."

Mrs. Goldfield compared the facsimile and the writing on the envelope. "Good Heavens," she said faintly. "They are the same."

"Distinctive first, isn't it?"

"Are they are they love letters?"

"Mrs. Goldfield, they are compromising love letters. That's what provides the amazement. The old boy was at least fifty in those days, and his romance was all supposed to be in his poetry, for it wasn't in his life, so far as anybody knew. His marriage wasn't much of a romance, to hear his friends on the subject."

"Was he married—at the time?"

"Married and a monument. I won't say an institution," said Gamadge, "but certainly a monument."

Mrs. Goldfield leaned back in her chair. After a minute she sat forward again. "But couldn't he have written Grandmother Goldfield just one letter—about something else? Perhaps she was a literary admirer."

"If so he didn't keep her letter, which in that case was the only fan letter he never did keep. There were tales of her in his life. You know how the things are addressed? To the Parrot. What was Grandmother Goldfield like, when she was in her prime?"

"Perfectly beautiful," admitted Mrs. Goldfield, "but a little strange. Her portrait is in the dining-room; Grandfather Goldfield had it done in London."

"Ah! They met in the artist's studio. Perhaps at a garden party, though; Garthwin became quite a social character in his middle period. How old would she have been?"

"About thirty, I should think. She was fearfully old when she died—in 1935. Practically bedridden. We hardly saw her. Glen said they were all terrified of her, but that she had the reputation of being charming when she was young."

"Didn't wear well," Gamadge lifted the envelope carefully, studied it, and smiled at her. "You know what I think. She got those communications over a short period of time—a few years; she hid them in letters which she had received in the past from Grandfather Goldfield—nobody was likely to look into those! Ames and your husband looked at them, though, after her death—and your husband, or perhaps both of them, noticed some blue enclosures. Your husband paid no attention to them—why should he?"

"But on the Sunday, the day he died—do you remember what he was doing that day, Mrs. Goldfield?"

"It was rainy, and he was in pain most of the time. He just wandered around the house, or read, or rested. I was out in the afternoon."

"Let's say he went up to the attic and tackled those old letters for want of something better to do. The blue enclosures were gone, all but one forgotten envelope. He'd read the article in the new Quarterly, he compared the handwriting, and he came to my conclusions. Did he have a finger-printing outfit?"

"Yes, he did once, something he'd amused himself with when he was a boy."

"He wasn't amusing himself with it this time; somebody had cashed in on the Garthwin letters, and even if the envelopes had been withheld, it might only be a matter of time before they were cashed in on too. This Quarterly article is just a preview, you know, an introduction; the letters themselves are going to come out later, in a book; with a lot of commentary and so forth by George Files."

"Glendon got fingerprints on that envelope?" She sat staring at it.

"That's my idea; he'd only need powder and a good reading glass to satisfy himself—by comparison. Plenty of prints to be picked up around a house, you know, and plenty of them could be easily identified. When he had satisfied himself, he tackled the bandit—you said that would be his way of doing things."

"Serious matter, you know; somebody got a pretty penny out of it, and it wasn't the kind of thing the family would care for. So he showed his proof, and gave his ultimatum. But the guilty party didn't have to confess after all."

"No."

"All Grandmother Goldfield's fault, wasn't it?" asked Gamadge, with a change of tone. "She must have had an extraordinary kind of humor, mustn't she? And the sort of loving-kindness you meet in Restoration drama. Think of her laying this time-hus to blow up her relatives-in-law with them. You know, I don't believe she can have liked the Goldfields."

"She had very little in common with them, I should say. She came of an old gone-to-seed family, and the impression I got was that she married almost frankly for a living. That's why the family didn't entirely like her. But she could be very charming, and usually was while she was young. Glendon had something of her charm, I understand, but he lacked her business instincts." She smiled. "Susan inherited her gracefulness." She looked up. "It's almost incredible—she must have known that her papers would be gone through after she died."

"But they weren't, after all—until that rainy Sunday, if I'm right. Still, she accepted the chance I bet she was gloating. She didn't know what spectacular results her little practical joke would have, but I wonder if she'd have cared. I'm not surprised that she turned out rather formidable in her old age."

"But I don't understand how the letters could have been sold without giving anything away."

"Nothing's given away in this article," said Gamadge, "and I'm as curious about the circumstances of the sale as you are. More so, perhaps, since I know how those things are usually swung. It all happened in England; says here that they were offered to a well-known collector by an 'accredited agent'—whatever that may mean. The collector couldn't bear to suppress anything so valuable—or perhaps he couldn't bear missing the spotlight—so he talked to Stanwood the publisher, and Stanwood took on the job of processing the Garthwin heirs. They're only collaterals, it's not even the same name, and it rather emerges that they need the money. They agreed to publication—sold the rights. Stanwood of course paid them. The implication is that Garthwin's Unknown was impecunious heirs too, and that they sold out under conditions of absolute secrecy."

"I should think so! The Goldfields would die first. But one of them must have—how frightful."

"Suppose it wasn't a born Goldfield, though?"

"Even so, I simply can't imagine."

"There was certainly an agent," said Gamadge, "but how in that case was the deal swung? Well, I'll make inquiries in the trade. Those people sometimes know or guess more than gets into print. And now would you like to assess the money value of this envelope of ours?"

"If there were no envelopes, they must all have been very suspicious at first."

"It's all here, in the Quarterly. They put fifty-seven varieties of experts on the job; you know there are lots of other holograph letters of Garthwin's extant for comparison. He wrote thousands of letters to too many." Gamadge studied the blue envelope and smiled. "I wish I knew how they ever managed that affair; it can't have been too easy in those days."

"Well, Grandfather Goldfield did leave her in London sometimes when he had to go to France."

"One glorious summer, and then eleven letters to America. I suppose poor Garthwin thought she'd destroy his, and I bet the ones he destroyed weren't nearly so romantic!"

Warime Spy Success Is Bared at Trial

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Former Soviet spy courier Elizabeth Bentley related yesterday Communist cloak-and-dagger activity in wartime Washington uncovered top-secret data for D-day in Europe.

She told her story in testimony at the federal perjury trial of William W. Remington, 33, former Commerce Department economist. He is charged with lying before a grand jury when he denied he ever was a Communist.

Miss Bentley said Remington was a member of the Communist "underground," and therefore had no party card or other credentials.

However, she said, he paid party dues to her in Washington and gave her a "super-secret" formula for synthetic rubber and secret information on wartime aircraft development and production.

Much of the testimony by Miss Bentley revolved around other espionage groups with which, she said, Remington was not connected.

She said one of these, allegedly headed by Nathan Gregory Silvermaster, provided her with D-Day European invasion data as well as a tip that the U. S. was about to break a Russian code.

Miss Bentley added that William Ludwig Ullman, a former Treasury Department employee and later an air force officer assigned to the Pentagon, told her he obtained the D-Day information from a contact in the office of Maj. Gen. John H. Hildring, in charge of the civilian affairs division.

However, she said she was quite certain that no one in Hildring's office intentionally leaked the information.

Bloomington Wins Over Bowersville

Bloomington's Bulldogs invaded the Bowersville court Tuesday evening and walked off with a 31-21 win in a low scoring defensive game.

The Bloomington team led by a basket at the end of the first quarter 8 to 6, but in the next frame they got both their offense and defense working and held the hosts to only two points while they gathered in 11 counters to make the scoreboard read 19 to 8.

After the intermission the Bulldog defense slipped a little, and

Dairies To Have Part in Civil Defense Plans

Milk Potential Here Studied in Case of Bombings in Area

Washington C. H. dairies working on a round-the-clock schedule, would be able to process 5,925 gallons of milk above the required amount for local consumption, according to Donald Lange, county sanitarian.

This information is part of a report sent to the state department of health by Lange in response to a request by the state department of Civil Defense for a survey on milk processing in case of an emergency.

All information gathered by this and other surveys conducted in other parts of the state will be compiled by the health department, and the different areas will be assigned alternate suppliers. Circleville has already been assigned the job of supplying milk for Columbus in event the dairies there are put out of commission by bombings.

Among the other questions asked on the survey were the number of 10-gallon milk cans available and the number and the capacity of trucks that can be used to transport the milk. The report also asked for the amount of refrigeration space, both stationary and mobile, the number of experienced persons able to help process the milk and the additional number needed to put the dairies on a 24-hour basis.

Lange's report shows there are 2,500 graded and ungraded 10-gallon cans in the area, and there are 26 trucks with a capacity of hauling 2,700 cans, which can be used in an emergency. There is also 5,100 cubic feet of refrigeration space as well as one semi-trailer truck with refrigeration unit.

There are, at the present time, 11 persons who would be able to process the milk—three less than the required number needed to put the dairies on a 24-hour schedule.

The total amount of ungraded milk available would vary with the season, Lange reports, but it would be between 45,000 and 100,000 gallons per day.

The dairies use three types of power, gas, oil and electric, to obtain heat for processing the milk.

"We will know more about where Fayette County stands when we receive the final report," Lange concluded. The report will probably be returned within the next couple of weeks.

New Holland Man Hurt from Fall

Robert Coy, 30 of New Holland, was in Memorial Hospital today recovering from injuries received Tuesday afternoon in a fall from the John Craig home on Robinson Road.

Coy fell from the roof of the Craig home while installing a television aerial. He received cuts on his head, a fractured wrist and bruises. He was taken to the office of Dr. Joseph M. Herbert in the Kirkpatrick ambulance, and his injuries were treated.

Coy is employed by the Armstrong Electric Shop of New Holland.

Milledgeville Bank Holds Its Election

The same officers were re-elected in the reorganization meeting of the Milledgeville Bank of Jeffersonville Tuesday.

A. E. Ervin was re-elected president, and Frank E. Hidy was re-elected vice-president. The other directors are: W. W. Williams, Forrest Smith, Mrs. Marie Ropp, Ray R. Maddox and Hays Allen.

Mrs. Mildred Pent was re-elected cashier of the institution. Reports indicated the bank had a good year's business.

County Courts

PARTITION SUIT

Welton Jett, in a suit filed in common pleas court against Cecil R. Jett and others, asks partition of lot 18 in the Pavey Addition, in which he claims one fourth interest. Willard C. Walter, Chillicothe, represents the plaintiff.

$10,000 DAMAGES ASKED

Horace S. Kerr, Columbus, bringing action in the common pleas court here against Sakreite, Inc., Cincinnati, asks $10,000 damages and $45 for medical expenses, as result of injuries sustained Sept. 29, 1950, in a traffic accident.

Kerr represented by Jack M. Parrish of Columbus, states that while he was driving toward this city on the Columbus Road, some 5 miles from Washington C. H. an International truck owned by the defendant forced him from the road into a ditch, causing permanent injuries and necessitating much medical attention.

DIVORCE GRANTED

A decree of divorce has been awarded Daisy Morris from Roy Morris, on grounds of gross neglect of duty.

The decree carries with it $3,000 alimony for the plaintiff, and permits the defendant to retain an automobile, household goods, farm equipment, livestock, etc.

Washington Savings Bank Picks Officers

Two new directors were added to the Board of Directors of the Washington Savings Bank and William J. Purcell was promoted from teller to assistant secretary-treasurer of the bank.

These were the highlights of the annual meeting of the board of directors and the stockholders, held Monday afternoon at the Washington Savings Bank.

New directors include George W. Campbell and Roy B. Fultz.

Other directors and officers named included the following: A. H. Finley, president; Judge Rell G. Allen and R. R. Meriweather, vice presidents; Floyd L. Mitchell, assistant secretary - treasurer and Arch O. Ribber, secretary - treasurer. Richard R. Rankin was named counselor of the board.

Ribber reported that the year 1950 was an "excellent year — one of the best we've ever had."

Funeral Saturday For Mrs. Kellough

Funeral services for Mrs. Harold Kellough, who was found dead at her home north of Washington C. H. Monday, will be held Saturday at 2 P. M. at Grace Methodist Church under the direction of Rev. A. W. Caley.

Interment will be made in the family lot in the Washington C. H. Cemetery.

Friends may call at the Geister Funeral Home at anytime.

Hobby Club Will Meet Friday Night

F. Scott Zimmerman has announced that the Fayette County Hobby Club of which he is president, will meet at the apartments of Mrs. Zada Winters and Mrs. Nellie Monteith, 107 1/2 South North Street, Friday at 8 P. M.

It is the regular monthly meeting of the club, and there will be the usual exhibition of unusual things by various members, as well as sale and exchange of things, it is announced.

Residents Here Invited To Hear Panel Discussion

Foreign Students At OSU To Appear At WHS on Tuesday

A unique opportunity for adults and youths of Fayette County to get more understanding of their foreign neighbors will be afforded next Tuesday, when an international panel will appear here.

The general public will have a chance to hear and see the foreign students, all now enrolled at Ohio State University, perform when they appear at 8 P. M. next Tuesday in the high school auditorium.

City high school students and students from the ninth through the 12th grades at Good Hope High School will hear the panel at 10 A. M. Tuesday in the auditorium here.

Students enrolled in grades seven through 12 at Jeffersonville and from grades nine through 12 at Bloomingburg and Madison Mills schools will go to an assembly at the Jeffersonville auditorium at 1:30 P. M. Tuesday to hear the panel.

J. P. Schmidt, professor of rural sociology, Agricultural Extension Service at Ohio State, will serve as moderator. He is considered one of the outstanding men in the United States in leading panel discussions.

Officials at the university say that the international students who appear here will come from several of the "hot spots" in the world. They will appear here through the joint sponsorship of Ohio State University and the city and county schools of Fayette County.

Many adults, confused by international politics, will be interested in getting a personal insight on some of the neighbors in foreign lands at the general meeting scheduled in the evening at 8 o'clock. There will be no admission charge for the panel discussion.

Those who are responsible for bringing the panel here point out that there efforts are being made purely in the interests of international peace and understanding.

March of Dimes

(Continued from Page One) actually helps others who suffer from polio. She was stricken with it two years ago, and with the help of the Warm Springs, Ga. Foundation, her parents and numerous friends both in and out of school, she is on the road to recovery.

Attendees Classes This sparkling brown eyed youngster is now in the eighth grade at Washington C. H. High School. The school has arranged so that "Bev" can attend most of her classes in the afternoon. Her friends from school come by and wheel her to school when the sidewalks aren't too slippery. Those classes which she is unable to attend she keeps up with her studies at home.

Although "Bev" likes all of her studies in school, she particularly prefers American History. Out of school, she likes to collect stamps, but her deep interest is horses. She has started a collection of miniature ones, and hopes to have a large "stable" for her room in the near future. She isn't particular either what kind of horses they are—Palominos, trotters, quarter horses and cow ponies she likes them all.

As for this 13 year old youngster's reason for wanting to help the March of Dimes drive, she says: "It has helped me, so I'm just trying to return the favor."

23rd Anniversary Observance Planned

Plans for a 23rd anniversary observance next Thursday, today were completed by ten men who form the human equation of the Meriweather Motor Co.

Nothing much out of the ordinary has been planned for the occasion, R. M. (Bud) Meriweather, the assistant manager said. He explained that his father, R. R. (Bob) Meriweather, the headman and founder of the firm, felt that the big celebration should be delayed for the silver anniversary two years hence.

Just 23 years ago Thursday—that was Jan. 11, 1928—the first contract was by Meriweather with the Hudson Motor Car Co., as its agent here. A few months later, a similar contract was signed with the Packard Motor Car Co. And, those contracts have stood through the intervening years.

With the exception of a few days in October of 1944, when the agency's home on Market Street was destroyed by fire, there never has been a time when Hudson and Packard car owners did not have an authorized dealer to whom they could go for service.

Lewis Ramsay has been the shop foreman since the beginning. In the early days he was virtually the entire shop crew.

During its 23 years, the company has grown. Two sons are following in the footsteps of their father. Bud, a 1945 graduate of Washington C. H. High School entered the business in 1947 after 18 months in the army during the war.

The same year his older brother entered the business, Charles (Chuck) Meriweather was leaving WHS. After a year at Office Training School in Columbus, he came in too as the office manager.

The three Meriweathers form the basis of the sales staff.

With Ramsay in the shop are Willard Wheaton, Eldon Hidy and Eldon Reynolds. Ronald Hidy, Ronald Palmer and Willard Schiller, co-op students of the auto mechanics class of the high school, complete the shop staff.

John Phillips is the parts and service manager.

Fayette Countian Wins Bank Promotion

In the annual election of the Huntington National Bank of Columbus, Tuesday, C. E. Fultz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy B. Fultz of Jefferson Township, was named one of the four vice presidents of the institution.

Interesting Session Of Lodge Held

Selden Grange, at its regular meeting, Tuesday evening, at the Staunton School House voted $10 to the March of Dimes program.

The regular order of business was presided over by the Master Doris Mark, assisted by the usual corps of officers.

Guests at the Grange were Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Smith and daughter and Miss Juanita Roberts, all of Marshall Grange. Smith, who was a voting delegate to the annual state meeting, held in Toledo last month, gave a very interesting report.

Miss Roberts, master of Marshall Grange and chairman of the county youth committee, announced that the next youth party and dance will be held at Memorial Hall Wednesday, Jan. 24.

Mrs. Carsie Garringer, chairman of the home economics committee, announced the installation of Grange officers at Memorial Hall next Monday.

The Albert S. Goss Membership Memorial campaign was explained and Selden Grange plans to have its quota of ten new members to qualify for the membership memorial.

County Agent W. W. Montgomery announced that the International Youth Panel, will be held at the high school auditorium.

Announcement was also made that the Concord Township Farm Bureau turkey supper would be Wednesday, January 17, at Staunton School at 6:30 P. M.

A vote of thanks was extended to the school board for the new fluorescent lights which had recently been installed in the building.
